It Takes Risk

Capital to Change Land Practices

Ralph McGill, editor of the Atlanta Constitution, thinks the cause of the South's farmland problem lies with our own people.

In a speech at Tuskegee Institute, Alabama, the Georgia editor declared the South has failed to furnish the credit necessary to establish a diversified agriculture.

We have heard similar language throughout the South for many years, but McGill scores an effective point by saying it at this particular time — when cotton allotments have been chopped thin and thousands of land workers are left wondering where to go and what to do.

It takes a certain amount of risk capital to try new lines on the farm, just as it does in industry. Traditionally there is more risk capital available for new gambles in the factory than on the farm because industrial money is supposed to turn over faster — yet investments are just as apt to be lost in town as in the country, and the aggregate of industrial losses is vastly greater than anything the land workers ever dreamed of.

The basic attraction for risk capital is, of course, the prospect of producing something that you know for certain the people want, at a price they can pay. The big days of cotton production are gone, and the South has had trouble finding something else to produce on idle acres — something that will readily sell.

Seasonal vegetables have been tried. And peanuts. And in eastern Arkansas the farmers have boomed soy beans into a major crop.

But the first cotton substitute which looks really inviting to risk capital is livestock — and that's the direction in which local farmers have been traveling.

But it takes a lot of money — and a lot of experience on the part of the farm operator.

The brightest fact about the local picture is that the theory and practice of livestock farming are already pretty well established in southwest Arkansas — and once you are over this "hump" credit is easier to obtain. Money doesn't like to venture out alone. But when the start has been made, and early ventures have panned out well, what first looked like a gamble becomes sound business.

OR Group From Hope on Duty Tour

Field Artillery reservists from Hope are learning the latest methods and techniques of artillery warfare on the ranges at Fort Still, Oklahoma.

Nine officers and men of Hope's 79th Field Artillery Battalion are now attending a two weeks summer camp where they are receiving extensive training in gunnery, communications, observation, surveying and administration.

The men will return to Hope when camp closes on June 24.

They include: Robert E. Nelson, 49 East 14th street, John V. Keck, 146 South Elm street, Malcolm E. Hinton, Rt. 1, John W. Martin, 604 West 4th street, and James H. Moore, Rt. No. 2, and Royce Weisenberger.

Peurifoy Denies 'Payoff' Charges by McCarthy

Washington, June 21 —(AP)— Senators investigating the 1945 Amerasia case turned to John E. Peurifoy for a formal reply today to Senator McCarthy's charges he made a "payoff" deal with a defendant in the case.

Peurifoy, deputy undersecretary of state, denied the accusation when McCarthy, Wisconsin Republican, made it last week.

That denial still stands "and I am going to repeat it in my testimony," Peurifoy told a reporter in advance of a closed meeting at 8 a. m. (CST) with the senate foreign relations subcommittee looking into the Amerasia secret documents episode.

The airy group arranged to hear Peurifoy at:

1. Senator Tydings (D-Md.), the chairman, signed a recommendation calling for contempt proceedings against Philip Jaffe, one-time editor of the non-defunct Amerasia magazine. Three other members of the five-man committee said they plan to join Tydings in approving the recommendation by the group's counsel, Edward P. Morgan.

The move is based on Jaffe's refusal to answer questions about the five-year-old Amerasia case, which involved alleged theft during the war of hundreds of secret government papers. They were discovered in the New York headquarters of Amerasia by federal agents.

Jaffe pleaded guilty and was fined $2,500 on a charge of conspiring to obtain illegal possession of the documents. Last June 12 he went before the senate inquiry committee, which is reviewing the Amerasia case as part of its general investigation of McCarthy's charges the state department is harboring Communists and fellow travelers.

In recommending late yesterday that Jaffe be cited for contempt of congress, Counsel Morgan told a news conference the former editor had declined to answer nearly all questions put to him, on the constitutional ground that he might incriminate himself.

"In my opinion," said Morgan, "the privilege claimed by Jaffe under the fifth amendment was claimed on too broad a basis. A witness is privileged to refuse to answer only those questions which it reasonably appears might incriminate him."

If the full foreign relations committee and the senate agree approves the contempt recommendation, it will go then to the justice department for possible court action.

The subcommittee also has pending contempt recommendation, against two other witnesses for refusal to answer questions. They are Earl Browder, former chief of the American Communist party, and Frederick Vandebilt Field, New York millionaire who has been charged with being a Red. Field did deny he is a Soviet agent.

Delaney to Head Food Purity Probe

Washington, June 21 —(AP)— Rep. James J. Delaney, 49-year-old New York attorney and former prosecutor, was reported slated today to head a congressional investigation of the purity of the nation's food.

One of the first things that may be investigated is the possible effect that food grown on land fertilized with a by-product of the atomic bomb would have on humans who eat it.

The house unanimously ordered the investigation yesterday and directed Speaker Sam Rayburn to appoint the seven representatives to make it. While Rayburn made no announcement of the selections, persons close to him said Delaney, a Democrat, probably will be the chairman. Four of the seven members will be Democrats, the other three Republicans.

The resolution creating the committee gives it wide latitude for its investigation. It directs the committee to inquire into:

1. The nature, extent, and effect of the use of chemicals, compounds, and synthetics in the production, processing, preparation, and packaging of food products.
2. The nature, extent, and effect of the use of pesticides and insecticides with respect to food and food products.
3. The nature, effect, and extent of the use of chemicals, compounds and synthetics in the manufacture of fertilizer, with emphasis on the effect on soil, vegetation and the health of humans and animals consuming food produced on the soil.

Delaney said he knew nothing about reports he will head the committee but would willingly accept the assignment. He handled the house resolution setting up the group, and normal procedure would make him chairman.

Six Nations Begin Coal Pool Plans

Paris, June 21 —(AP)—Six nations of Western Europe begin secret talks today to plan exactly what they will do to merge their coal and steel industries.

The six governments—of France, Western Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg—must decide on the powers to be delegated to a new international authority to supervise the merger.

Britain, objecting to a French proposal to give the international group final authority, has refused to join in the talks. But the French foreign office will inform the British of the progress of negotiations through a nightly telegram which the French will help prepare.

All six countries meeting here have agreed to the principle that surrendering a little of their own sovereignty to the international board is a means of preventing war through improving living conditions.

France's master economic planner, Jean Monnet, has a working treaty draft ready for the delegates. The draft provides for a "supra-national" authority even more powerful than the national governments in dealing with coal and steel.

Would Force British Into Pool Plan

By DON WHITEHEAD

Washington, June 21 —(AP)— Top-drafted a proposal today to strip $340,000,000 out of Great Britain's recovery funds unless the labor government joins in a pool of Europe's coal and steel.

And in a separate move, Senator Ledge (R-Mass) sounded out senate sentiment on the chances of overriding administration opposition to his plan to tap $5,000,000,000 of Marshall plan recovery funds for part of the cost of re-arming western Europe.

The penalty proposed against Britain would be in the form of an amendment to the economic cooperation administration act which sets the rules for the European recovery program.

A rough draft of the plan is being passed around among senators as the first step toward placing the proposal before the senate appropriations committee.

In its present form, the amendment would cut Great Britain's Marshall plan aid in half during the time Britain "fails to participate in the Schuman plan for pooling western Europe's coal and steel."

Britain's share of Marshall plan funds authorized by congress is $695,000,000.

The British Labor party's executive committee has shown marked coolness toward the pool plan, which was advanced by Foreign Minister Schuman of France. Prime Minister Attlee has said the labor government is not now ready to take part in the pool, although it is "fully prepared" to seek closer economic integration of Europe.

"We frankly want to put pressure on Britain to join the pool," one senator—who asked that he not be identified by name—said. "If we lose in the appropriations committee we'll carry out fight to the senate floor."

Lodge's original plan was to earmark $100,000,000 of recovery funds for military purposes. It was rejected Monday by the senate foreign relations and armed services committees.

He is considering revising his original plan and offering it in a new amendment to the bill authorizing a $1,222,500,000 foreign arms program.

At present, the Marshall plan nations have almost $5,000,000,000 of their own currencies deposited in a special reserve fund. These are the so-called counterpart funds which are put up to match U. S. dollar aid.

Lodge contends the funds would be valuable in helping Europe to rebuild her military defenses. He is known to have considerable Republican support for the plan to shift part of the arms burden off the shoulders of the American taxpayer.

Senate Vote Makes Higher Pensions Nearer

By JOHN CHADWICK

Washington, June 21 —(AP)— Senate approval by 81 to 2 carried the promise of higher old-age pensions for millions of persons a long step closer to reality today.

By this thumping vote, the senate last night passed a bill that would roughly double benefit payments under the old-age and survivors insurance system in the federal social security system.

The measure is a major part of the administration program. It would add about 10,000,000 persons to the 35,000,000 now covered and would liberalize requirements for qualifying for benefits.

Before final action is taken by congress, differences between the senate bill and a similar bill passed by the house last year will have to be ironed out by a conference committee.

Many thorny questions remain to be settled. One of the sharpest issues in dispute is whether to provide for disabled persons in the social security program. The house bill would do this but not the senate measure.

Other key differences include benefit formulas, tax rates, eligibility requirements and federal contributions for public assistance (direct relief).

Senator Taft of Ohio, the Republican policy chief in the senate, said in a statement after the bill passed that he favored development of a system "under which old age pensions will be paid to all persons over 65 on a pay-as-you-go basis."

As the bill was passed by the senate, it would increase monthly benefits an average of 85 to 90 per cent for current beneficiaries under the old-age and survivors insurance system.

The present payroll tax of 1-1/2 per cent each on employer and employee would be continued until 1956. Then it would rise gradually to 3-1/4 per cent an employer and employee alike in 1970 and thereafter.

W. S. Atkins Files for City Attorney

Three more candidates have announced for city offices in advance of the filing deadline which is set for midnight Saturday, June 24.

W. S. Atkins, local attorney, has filed for city attorney which is currently held by John P. Vesey. Joe Jones has filed for re-election as alderman in Ward 1, and Charley Taylor seeks the alderman post of Ward 4.

Harvey Barr has previously filed for re-election in Ward 3, and Paul Raley seeks the seat held by Bob Cain in Ward 2.

Mrs. Charles Reynerson has filed for city clerk.

Judy May Be 'Washed Up' at Age of 29

By JACK QUIGG

Hollywood, June 21 —(AP)— Little girl, what now?

That was the question on Hollywood's lips today as it recovered from shocking news that Judy Garland, a child star who lost none of her luster with maturity, slashed her throat in a fit of despair over her career.

Miss Garland's studio, MGM, suspended her Saturday and removed her from the cast of her latest picture after she failed to show up for a rehearsal with Fred Astaire. Monday night, during a conference about her problems with her husband and advisers, she ran into the bathroom and slashed her throat with a broken glass. Her doctor said the wound is superficial.

Some say this means the star, who has had marital and health troubles recently, too, is washed up at 29.

Other contend MGM would never cut an actress whose recent films have grossed about $5,000,000 each.

One thing is certain: The "little girl with the big voice" has almost everybody's sympathy.

It's no secret that her health has suffered in recent years. Since May 1949 she has been receiving treatment for a nervous condition. In addition, she has had to diet to combat a tendency toward plumpness.

Judy has frequently said she wants to continue her career. Her studio considers her one of its biggest attractions. Yet it has replaced her in three films in two years because she "caused us embarrassment, delay, inconvenience."

Rights Dispute Senate Threat to Peace Draft

Washington, June 21 —(AP)— A touchy civil rights dispute in the senate today clouded the future of the peacetime draft act now set to expire at midnight Saturday.

There appeared to be little argument about continuation of the selective service registering of all young men from 18 through 25 years for possible emergency military service.

Instead battle lines formed over a test on President Truman's directive to end Negro segregation in the armed services.

The issue was raised through a Ga) already approved by a majority of the senate. Armed services committee — to give every future enlistee a draft — the right to serve in units made up only of persons "of his race."

Democratic Leader Lucas (Ill.) told a reporter he is confident there are enough votes "to kill this." He asked the senate to work overtime in a night session tonight if necessary to complete action.

Lucas probably would settle for an agreement to vote sometime tomorrow.

Russell, who insists his proposal is a "true civil rights measure because it protects our traditional right of the individual to select his associates," made no claims as to final senate action.

Lucas disagreed completely with Russell about the amendment saying any one who is "for the civil rights program" will be against this.

Senator Saltonstall (R-Mass.) deputy GOP floor leader, agreed with Lucas saying the Russell amendment "would be a step backward."

City Council Holds Routine Session

Double parking on Third street downtown was discussed before the Hope City Council in a routine session last night, and a committee of businessmen asked the council to amend Ordinance No. 612 which bans parking on the south side of the highway.

The agreement banning parking on that portion of the street was a condition which the state highway department requested before repairing Highway 67 through the city.

The city attorney was instructed to contact the highway department and determine whether or not it would be objectionable. If not, parking will be allowed.

Following a discussion of the lighting situation of the negro part the following resolution was passed:

"Whereas the City has recently acquired by gift a suitable site for a negro park; and

Whereas the negro citizens have evidenced their interest in the development of said park by placing substantial improvements and facilities thereon, under the leadership of the Hope Civic Improvement Association, Inc.; and

Whereas this park is in need of lighting facilities for night use and recreational events, and the Hope Civic Improvement Association, Inc. has agreed to supply the activities at the park and the net proceeds thereof to defray the cost of such lighting facilities over a period of five years;

"Be It Therefore Resolved by the City Council of Hope, Arkansas, that the mayor and clerk said county are hereby authorized to negotiate a joint loan with the Hope Civic Improvement Association, Inc., in the sum of $10,000 payable in five equal annual installments, the principal to bear interest rate not in excess of 5 per cent, and to obtain for the City title to said lighting equipment to take a lien upon the proceeds from the operation thereof; and they are further authorized to execute all notes on behalf of the City and guarantee the payment of the principal and interest, and as additional security to pledge the proceeds from any revenues of the park until the said principal interest is paid."

Extension of a water line on 23rd and Main on the Palmont was turned over to Water and Sewer Plant Manager Clyde Zinn.

The mayor was authorized to negotiate a contract on behalf of the city for a wire line license on the Missouri Pacific tracks.

The group passed an ordinance assessing benefits, designated annual payment of 2 per cent said benefits, naming the committee for Improvement District No. 1.

As a result of the parking ordinance No. 653, a petition referendum has been filed with city clerk. The group took action in setting up an election to install one person on the gasoline tax.

Dulles Arrives in Japan for 'Peace' Talks

Tokyo, June 21 —(AP)—John Foster Dulles flew into Japan today to discuss peace terms and general Asiatic economic and political problems with General MacArthur.

As he arrived, U. S. Defense Secretary Louis Johnson, concerned more with the other alternative to peace — war and defense — toured the once mighty Japanese naval base at Yokosuka.

Dulles, Republican special adviser to the state department, said upon his arrival from Korea:

"I am here because the United States government has some positive ideas it wants to carry out."

He added, after being greeted at the airport by General MacArthur, Mrs. MacArthur and William J. Sebald, acting U. S. political adviser for Japan, that he will "consider all phases" of the peace is-

Dulles said he, Secretary Johnson, Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, and General MacArthur all "are working in a cooperative spirit and we will look for results."

Saturday when he stopped off in Tokyo enroute to Seoul, Dulles said his mission was "to determine if it is wise at this time to proceed with a peace treaty or other arrangements to consolidate further the peace."

A separate peace treaty with Japan, excluding Russia and Red China, is being urged by many Japanese and some Allied sources.

There was no indication what connection any Johnson's tour of Yokosuka had to do with his mission here.

His commander, Rear Adm. Ben-Dean Decker, wants the United States to keep it after a peace treaty is signed. Its drydocks will accommodate battleships, big carriers and all ships of the line.

Adm. Arthur W. Radford, Pacific fleet commander, said on a recent visit to Japan that the U. S. Navy does not need a Japanese base after the peace treaty is signed.

Secretary Johnson and General Bradley will leave tomorrow for Okinawa for a quick inspection of that aerial outpost. American officials have told them Okinawa would be threatened dangerously by Communist conquest of nearby Ryukyu, 450 miles to the south-west. They will return here Friday and depart Friday night for the U. S.

and loss of moral among co-workers. One spokesman said she added as much as 20 per cent to the cost of a film.

Just what, exactly, is the trouble has been the subject of speculation and rumor. This much is fact: The first indication that she and MGM were having trouble was her removal from the cast of "Barbaric Broadway" in 1948 because she was "physically unable to play the role."

In March 1949 Judy announced she and her second husband, Vincent Minelli, director of some of her best films, were separating. They are now reconciled.

In May, after a month of costly shooting on "Apple Get Your Gun," she was dropped for "not reporting to work." MGM sent her to Boston for a "long rest," and financed medical treatments. Two months later Judy was back, 115 pounds heavier and asking for work.

Date set for hearing is July 18. The mayor and Council discussed the cost and method of placing city advertising. It was decided that in the future duplication would be avoided. The division of ads between the local papers was left to the discretion of the mayor. Whereupon the mayor requested that unless there was objection he would for the present divide the advertising in proportion to circulation.

Batesville Publisher Succumbs

Dallas, June 21 —(AP)—William M. Shelby, 67, retired Arkansas newspaper publisher, died at a hospital here yesterday.

Shelby for 30 years was editor and publisher of the Batesville, (Ark.) Weekly Record. He retired 15 years ago and since had been living here with his daughter, Mrs. P. M. Carter.

Relatives said at the time of his retirement he was the oldest living member of the Arkansas Press association.

A native of Tennessee, he was an apprentice printer for a Fort Worth newspaper as a young man.

Survivors include four daughters, one of whom is Mrs. Lain McDougald of Newport, Ark., and a son. Burial will be at Batesville.

Two Small Boys Drown in Stock Pond

Beebe, June 21 —(AP)—Two small boys drowned in a stock pond 12 miles southwest of Beebe yesterday.

They are Leonard Paul Johnson, six, and Ray Lee Fenimore, three. The boys were sons of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Paul Johnson and of Mr. and Mrs. Roy H. Fenimore. Both families live in Hickory Plains (Prairie county).

Boating Party Nearing End of Course

Grand Canyon, Ariz., June 21 —(AP)—With the treacherous rapids of the swirling Colorado river behind them, the members of the first 195 Grand Canyon expedition were on their last lap today.

Troubles which have beset the party since it left Lees Ferry on the 346 mile trip on June 12 continued yesterday and delayed a scheduled landing at Pierce's ferry, about 9 miles from here.

A water pump was plugged with silt and had to be replaced causing a four-hour delay.

The powerboat, the Hudson, has only the calm waters of Lake Mead ahead in its journey to Hoover dam. Similar river trips have cost 1 lives since the first was tried in 1899. Aboard today are Otis Marston of Berkeley, Calif., engineer and navigator to the journey; William Belknap of Boulder City, Nev., and Wilson (Willie) Taylor Berkeley.

Four New Polio Cases in Arkansas

Little Rock, June 21 —(AP)—The state health department said today that four new cases of polio were reported in Arkansas last week.

They were in Crittenden, Garland, Pulaski and Union counties. During the corresponding week last year, 14 new cases were reported.

This year's total to date has reached 39 cases, compared to 58 for the corresponding period in 1949.

There Is a Hint That the Citadel of Communism Is Beginning to Get Shaky

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Is the citadel of communism beginning to get shaky?

Foreign Aid Administrator Paul G. Hoffman voiced the belief before the state governors' conference at White Sulphur Springs that tensions are building in Russia and her satellites.

That isn't a new thought for this column, but it's good to get the viewpoint of a high official whose business it is to keep a finger on the pulse of communism. Mr. Hoffman holds that "the free world can win out in this battle with the Kremlin."

"I am assured by the positive knowledge that tensions do build up in a dictatorship," he told the governors. "A dictatorship is only successful when it is dynamic and expanding. Once you stop that forward movement—and that we have had some success with—the mechanism is subject to strains."

"The very fact that Russia must hold between 12 and 15 million of its citizens in forced labor camps is striking evidence of strain. Moreover, the tensions between Russia and her satellites are being constantly taunted by the Kremlin's planned policy of helping itself to the cream of satellite production and giving back little."

"We have witnessed a dramatic break-away in the case of Yugoslavia. The story may be repeated again, and once the Communist world starts to crack it can disintegrate very rapidly indeed."

In the places where communism has had marked success are where it has been backed by military force and secret police. That is quite as true in Russia as among the satellites. The spread of the Red isn't as spontaneous as it is on the whole. It has been imposed, although it has had the support of fifth columnists among the citizens of the countries which it has absorbed.

Daily the evidence piles up of widespread revulsion against the Red rule in such unwilling satellites as Czechoslovakia, Poland and Hungary. Daily refugees are fleeing into the Western countries, and thousands more would follow but for the fact that they would be leaving behind relatives who would be subject to persecution.

Meantime, as Mr. Hoffman says, "we have had some success" in stopping the forward movement of communism. As a matter of fact the Red advance has been halted altogether in Europe along the front formed by the satellite countries.

Moreover, the gains achieved by the Communist parties in countries like Italy and France have been largely nullified. In the great industrial Ruhr of western Germany, where the Reds had shown much strength, communism has taken a terrific beating in the current election. The Ruhr is the most populous state of Western Germany and is comprised largely of miners and steel workers.

Small wonder then that the foreign aid administrator should find optimism in the situation. Small wonder, also that he should denounce talk of the inevitability of World War III, and declare that "our goal is not to win World War III, but to prevent it."

We can prevent war by strengthening the defenses of the eastern world and maintaining unity among the democracies.

Some day we may have peace based on a universal desire for it. But as things now stand peace depends on the Western nations maintaining the balance of military and industrial power which they now hold.

That may sound crude, but it's a fact which we must accept and act upon. Russia will not undertake a major war against the odds which now oppose her. Should

Gov. Lausche Confuses Ohio Democrats

By ED EASTERLO

Columbus, O., June 21 —(AP)—A lot of Ohio's voters were in an awful state of mind today, although the November election is nearly five months away.

There was anguish, anger, de-light and confusion.

This confusion followed Democratic Gov. Frank J. Lausche's unprecedented statement that he hadn't decided whom to support for U. S. Senator.

His party's nominee, Joseph T. Ferguson, or Republican Robert A. Taft.

He likes Ferguson as a state auditor, he said, but admires Taft "for his seriousness and forthrightness" as a U. S. senator.

This political heresy, voiced by the popular leader of Ohio Democrats (who is normally expected to point the way for the party members), did this:

It caused moans of anguish among the party faithful and friends of Ferguson, state auditor for 14 years.

It stirred indignation among labor leaders depending upon Ferguson to defeat the co-author of the Taft-Hartley act.

It delighted the Republicans, who appreciate any help in their efforts to re-elect Taft Nov. 7.

"It confused many of plain voters who wondered if Lausche was sincere or was just pulling a political stunt."

There appeared some agreement on one aspect of Lausche's statement, issued at the conference of governors in White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.:

It was a brave move. And it could be the boldest political gamble undertaken in recent years in a state noted for shrewd politicians.

Whatever Lausche's motives, many voters found it difficult to quarrel with this portion of his statement:

"I will vote, when I determine the issues, for the candidates I believe will serve the nation best. I will not allow my party interest to overcome my interest in my country."

The Democratic national chairman, William M. Boyle, Jr., agreed

"any official has the right to vote for any one he wants."

Lausche grinned when he heard about Boyle's statement, and commented:

"That's nice of him to say that."

Poison, Fire Brought Death Coroner Rules

Joplin, Mo., June 20 —(AP)—Miss Gwendolyn Creekmore was killed by poison and her body was seared by fire after death, Dr. W. W. Hurst, coroner, reported last night.

The wealthy 49-year-old woman, twice divorced, was found dead in her home here May 28. Her beaten body, with the clothes burned off, was lying in the living room of the luxurious home.

Hurst made his report to a coroner's jury and said it was his theory that Miss Creekmore died in a suicide pact with another person who failed to keep the pact and set fire to her body.

The jury, however, ruled only that the woman met death "by a party or parties unknown to this jury." After the inquest, four of the six jurors said they believed she had been murdered.

Hurst presented a pathological report on a study of the victim's vital organs. Death was caused by an irritant poison which could not be identified because the body was embalmed prior to the autopsy, he said.

Miss Creekmore had been hit on the head with a meat tenderizer, but there was no skull fracture, and the blows did not cause death, the coroner said.

Prosecutor Dal Toutelot said he was convinced she was murdered.

Mr. Bittle Speaks to VFW Auxiliary

The V. F. W. Auxiliary to Ramsey Cargile Post 451 met at the Hut at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Cecil Bittle, director in charge of the University of Arkansas' Fruit and Truck Branch Experiment Station, was guest speaker. Mr. Bittle gave an interesting and informative talk on the experiments now in process at the station and showed charts and plants, explaining how all kinds of fruits, vegetables, grass, trees, are perfected.

Mr. Bittle was very enthusiastic about his desire to get before the public the information regarding the work time and money spent on these experiments.

The auxiliary was told about the pranks which sometimes go out and pick the fruits that are priceless and represent many years of research.

The history of the local station is interesting within itself and Mr. Bittle invited the members to come out at any time to see the station, buildings, and grounds, which are in first class condition for the first time since before the war.

There was a short business meeting after the talk, followed by refreshments served to the 15 guests.

No Success in Malvern Brick Strike

By The Associated Press

An effort toward settlement of a six-weeks old strike of some 250 employees at the Acme Brick Co. plant at Malvern was without apparent success Wednesday. And, at Hot Springs seven electrical contractors said they wouldn't meet a union demand for a 12-1-2 cent an hour wage increase for electricians. Some 45 electricians continued to stay away from their jobs as a result. Representatives of the Acme company and of the AFL United Brick and Clay workers union met at Little Rock Tuesday with federal Mediator Charles A. Wheeler. No progress was reported but Wheeler said another conference was scheduled tentatively for Thursday, June 29, at Malvern. The plant's union employees struck May 8 after contract negotiations bogged down.

The Hot Springs work stoppage began last Thursday. Since then two contractors operating in the vicinity granted the AFL International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers the 12-1-2 increase above the present $2 an hour scale. Their employees returned to work. The other contractors refused. The union originally asked 25 cents an hour increase.

Oil Possibilities in East Arkansas Says Geologists

Little Rock, June 21 —(AP)—The Arkansas geology division believes—somewhat cautiously—that east-central Arkansas has "possibilities as a future oil producing region."

But, the division adds, more information needs to be known about geology of the region. The division's conclusions are contained in a newly-published bulletin, which it hopes will stimulate oil interest in eastern Arkansas.

The pamphlet indicated only "remote" possibility of oil near the surface.

Further toward the earth's core however, the natchez sand was described as a potential reservoir. Some of the oil which flows in

Miss Clarice Brown, Miss Betty Ann Benson, Miss Norma Jean Archer, and Johnny Gibson were among the 75 college representatives from the counties of Arkansas attending the McMath Convention at the Statler Hotel in Little Rock, Monday, June 19. Following the convention, they went to the Governor's Mansion for a buffet luncheon, and an informal talk by the governor. The guests were then invited to make a tour of the mansion and the grounds. Four colleges were represented by the Hope delegates: Miss Benson, Henderson State Teachers college, Arkadelphia; Miss Archer, of Northwestern, Evanston, Ill.; Miss Brown of Ouachita, Arkadelphia; and Mr. Gibson representing Baylor, Waco, Tex.

Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell Williams have returned from a ten day trip in West Tex.

Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Young have as guests this week, their grandchildren, Cynthia, Ricky and Susan Forster, of Shreveport.

Bond Jumpers to Waive Extradition

Blytheville, June 21 —(AP)—The two Chicago men arrested in Canada last week for jumping bonds in Arkansas have agreed to waive extradition, Mississippi County Sheriff William Berryman said today.

Sheriff Berryman said that he was notified by Canadian authorities yesterday that Max Lyesky, alias Martin Lane and Harry Smith have agreed to return to Arkansas to begin serving sentences of 22 years each imposed on them by Mississippi county Circuit court on charges of burglary and grand larceny. They were charged with the theft of a safe containing approximately $3,000 from a grocery at Elwah, Ark.

The two men were arrested in Montreal last week after Attorney General Ike Murry had ordered their $15,000 appeal bonds forfeited when they failed to surrender to the state penitentiary. Their bonds were set when they sought an appeal to the United States Supreme court.

Weather Is Favorable for Crops

Little Rock, June 21 —(AP)—Arkansas' recent hot dry weather—whatever its effect on human dispositions—good for crops.

The crop reporting service said in a weekly bulletin it was favorable for all crops and was "real cotton weather."

Farmers made good progress cultivating new crops, putting up hay and harvesting small grains, the report said.

Cotton grew rapidly, and "prospects are considerably brighter," the report added.

"Early cotton is beginning to form squares. Most of the cotton acreage is clean, and the crop is getting off to a fairly good start though somewhat late. Trips and boll weevils are numerous in many sections, but hot weather and poisoning programs have improved the insect situation."

The report said also that "rice is making good growth in all areas. Practically all the acreage is now seeded. Water supply is ample, and some fields have been watered twice."

Arkansas Guard Plane Crashes in Michigan

Andrews, Field, Md., June 21 —(AP)—Officials at this air force base said today that Walter J. Scherel, an air national guard major from when his plane crashed not far from Pittsburgh.

They did not know the cause of the crackup, which occurred about two miles south of Imperial, Pa. They said the plane, an F-51 in which Scherel was flying from Andrews field to Selfridge field, Mich. was badly damaged. Scherel was taken to the Sewickley (Pa.) hospital, suffering a broken arm, shoulder injuries, lacerations and mild shock.

HILDS' hands, surprisingly strong, pushed him away at last. "Bill, I don't know what to say."

Neither did Bill Jarvis: "Hildy, I might as well come clean. I guess it happened that first time I saw you, playing tennis. I just got interested, that's all."

"Maybe, Bill. And I won't be hypocritical enough to say I'm sorry you did. This has been sweet, and swell. But I am sorry that I let myself get interested too. I should have kept my head. Because it can't work, ever. You're Bev Coulter's guy. And you work for her father. Can't you see?"

"Yeah, I see," he said dully. She appeared to get possession of herself. She sat up. "I hope you do, Bill, we've got to snap out of it."

"Hildy, do you think I'm a complete heel?"

"Heel?" Her eyes were smudged, smoky. "No. You're not a heel and neither am I. We've just run up against something we can't handle. So—she pulled away from him—"You'd better forget that you ever sat in a crazy leaky old rowboat—and I'll forget it too. It isn't in the cards, Bill. So why go on making it tough?"

"Okay," he said. "I won't make it tough. But now you know."

"And I know, now, exactly what I have to do."

BEV COULTER made a remarkable recovery. She showed in mid-morning, fresh-faced and with scarcely a trace of the cold's ravages. Bill, fooling around on a putting-green in front of the hotel, stared in surprise as she came up.

"I can usually throw off a cold overnight. But"—she exploded—somberly—"is it too soon for you, darling?"

He was aware of a sudden feeling of guilt. "That really doesn't call for an answer, does it?" He tried to sound casual.

"Not really." Her eyes reminded him disconcertingly of small black searchlights. "But you'd have known that I was much better today, Bill, if you'd troubled to phone."

Conscious of brickly cheeks, he mumbled: "Well, I did ask your mother how you were. She said better, but that she wanted to keep you in bed. I—I didn't want to disturb you."

She laughed dryly. "Lame, my dear, but I'll buy."

He felt like a louse. Engaged to Bev, at Lookout Crest as the Coulter's guest, but falling—at least he could be honest privately—falling for another girl and trying to find the courage to tell Bev so. His eyes went down to clipped grass and Bev's sandaled feet.

"Fascinating, aren't they?"

Bill's head jerked up. "What?"

"My feet, I imagine," Bev said. "Whatever you're looking at."

He flushed again. "That's because you've got me, cold. I was careless this morning."

But another thought darted to torment him. Was he hesitating in coming clean with Bev because her father paid his salary? Because his future, insofar as he saw it at present, depended on Joe Coulter—therefore, indirectly, on Bev?

If so, he was worse than he had suspected himself of being.

"Poor old Bill," Bev said, at last. "Yeah," he said, irritated. "Poor old Bill. And the other day I was the Newfoundland-dog-type. You seem to have a fair for making me feel sort of overgrown and dumb."

Watchman Is Cleared of Murder Charge

Little Rock, June 21 —(AP)—A former nightwatchman has been cleared of a charge of second degree murder in connection with the death of a fellow employee.

He is Harry Hawthorn, 60.

A Circuit court jury yesterday found him innocent in the slaying of L. R. Slaughter, 37, early in Jan. 8, 1948.

Hawthorne was a watchman, and Slaughter, a millwright, at a lumber company mill at Woodson, south of Little Rock. Hawthorne testified he fired one shot into the darkness after someone shouted at him "old man, that's the last fire you'll ever put out," he started to extinguish a blaze in sawdust near Slaughter's home on the mill grounds. Slaughter later was found dead of a gunshot wound.

Other witnesses testified the two men had quarreled previously.

Organization of Coaches Suggested

Little Rock, June 21 —(AP)—The executive committee of the Arkansas Athletic association has voted to encourage formation of an organization of Arkansas high school coaches.

Committeemen said coaches have been talking of such a group for 10 years or more but may have felt that school superintendents and principals, who comprise the AAA, did not want them to form one. The resolution of approval was adopted to dispel any such belief, committee members said.

The executive committee, at the closing session yesterday of a two-day meeting, also directed executive Secretary Johnie Burnett to offer services of his office to the state Negro sports program in an advisory capacity.

DOROTHY DIX

Friendship

Dear Miss Dix: What is a true friend? How should we go about selecting our friends?

A GROUP OF SCHOOLGIRLS

Answer: I think about the best definition of a true friend ever given was that of the little boy who said that a true friend was somebody who knew all about you and still liked you.

For all of us have many faults and weaknesses and peculiarities. We do many things we should not do and leave undone many things that we should do, and a true friend is one who does not remember our sins against us, but goes on loving us in spite of them. If there were not those who were capable of doing this, we would have no friends because none of us is perfect.

Must Be Dependable

As to the qualities a true friend should have, I put loyalty first. A real friend must be one upon whom you can depend in fair weather or foul. Someone you can trust. A friend must be one who rejoices with you in your triumphs and weeps with you in sorrows.

A true friend is unselfish. She puts your pleasure and happiness above her own. A true friend respects your individual rights and privacy. She does not pry into your secrets of gossip about your affairs. She does not consider that friendship is a graft and that she has a right to ask favors of you and use your thing as if they were her own. A true friend is one who is always within call when needed, but never underfoot and in the way.

As to how to go about selecting friends, that is something that is mostly a matter of luck. Most of our friendships are accidental. We meet some one in a casual way and we are just attracted to her, perhaps for no reason that we can explain, and a tie of friendship is formed between us.

It is a matter of congeniality, because it is impossible to be friends with any one whose thought and tastes and habits are different from ours. We enjoy those who read the same books that we read who play our games, who like the same movies, and who talk our speech.

Like every other good thing friendship calls for self-sacrifice and persistent work. You must always be putting fresh fuel on the flames to keep it alive, but it is a fire at which you can warm your heart as long as you live, and it is worth all it costs.

Dear Miss Dix: I am a woman of 28, going to be married soon, my fiancé and I have planned to have a home, but I am the last child of my family to get married and my mother is not willing for me to leave her, although my father is living. I have helped support the family for man years longer than the other children and I now feel that I have a right to my own home and to live my own life. My mother married when she was very young and left her mother. Why shouldn't I have the same privilege? What would you suggest we do?

Answer: Pay no attention to your mother's selfish desire to keep you with her, but go along and establish your own home. This is the best for you and your husband, and in the end it will be the best for your mother, also because it will save the inevitable conflicts and misunderstandings that are sure to occur when two families try to live together.

There are many reasons why a young couple should set up their own home instead of going to live with their parents. One is that it domesticates them. Many a bride who would put on her hat and walk out on him after a spat with her husband, stays because she can't bear to give up her kitchen curtains and the new dishes they are paying for on the installment plan.

And especially every young couple should be by themselves during the first year in which they are getting adjusted to each other so that they can have all their fights in private without either of their families standing on the sidelines hearing and sicking them of each other.

The are a million reasons for going to housekeeping when you get married and not one against it. So don't let Mother keep you from doing it.

Dear Dorothy Dix: Should two children aged 10 and 7 be left alone at night while their parents go out to meetings, bridge parties, etc.? I say they are not old enough to be left alone. My husband says they are. He goes out frequently. It is very seldom that I go out any other night except Thursday to my bridge club.

A PERPLEXED MOTHER
Answer: I think it is a terrible thing for a mother and father to go off and leave two small children alone in the house. A thousand catastrophes could happen while you would be responsible if you left them alone when too ill and ignorant to know how to take care of themselves.

I certainly think your husband should be willing to stay at home one night a week with the children, but if he isn't, your duty plain. Stay with them unless you can get some reliable person to take care of them.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

New York, June 20 — Americans were free in the days of the Republic but under democracy and Democratic administrations lasting a little more than a quarter-century, all told, since 1912, our freedoms have been curtailed and our basic freedom has been absolutely abolished. Our basis freedom was the right to own and dispose of our earnings. That has been absolutely wiped out. If you are not entitled to any portion of the money that you earn by your work, you are a slave. You may not now that you are but you are.

It has been the policy of congress to make you think you are still somewhat free so that you won't realize that you are a slave. This has been done by allowing the majority of the people to retain most of their earnings. They feel that they are 80 or 90 or 95 per cent free. But the minority, the minority, and some of them, more than 10 per cent of their income in given years. But the majority have been laughed at their predicament because they have always been falsely deceived as inherently bad. Man for man, they are no worse than the poor. I'd better. But, if a rich man can be totally deprived of his earnings or income, so can the middle-class and the poor. If the rich people are bad, the Republican way to get back at them is to charge them with crimes, prosecute them and send them to prison. Under the Republican system, you don't abuse people just because you dislike them.

Now the freedom of all Americans is so far gone that you can be sent to prison for refusing to give up money out of your own earnings to buy machinery, food, overcoats, and housing for the people of Democratic nations. That is where the British government got you. If you refuse to pay taxes to support the British government, or the French or Italian and to maintain an army of Democratic parias in luxury and splendor abroad to "administer" the spending of your earnings—the Democratic administration puts you in jail and seizes your savings. You aren't represented in these foreign governments. I personally, hate the British Marxian government with a nervous communist right in the middle of it, but I have to pay a tax on my earnings to promote Marxism in Britain.

The Democrats say this is a bipartisan foreign policy and some fake or yellow-belly Republican have wobbled along with the fraud to yell out that the Democrats got us into this jam and challenge them to work out their problem or get out and let Republicans restore our wonderful American Republic. The Democrats never could govern within the limits of the constitution because the con-

Rumor That Sam Snead Has 'Lost the Keys'

Columbus, O., June 21 —(AP) — A murmur made the rounds at the Scioto country club today that Sam Snead "had lost the keys to the safe," meaning the top favorite was slipping as qualifying rounds of the mid-century PGA golf championship opened.

Despite sub-par shooting in practice sessions, Snead was finding trouble with direction for the exacting 7,032 yard layout.

The Virginia hillbilly and No. 1 money winner will be defending his crown.

Whether he is off the target or not remains to be determined as 129 qualifiers today tee off for 63 berths. Snead, as defending champion, is exempt from the trials.
But he will shoot with the boys,
anyway.

An 18 hole round followed by another 18 tomorrow will decide the field for match play beginning Friday and concluding next Tuesday in golf's greatest man-to-man test.

Once Beaten Texas Looks Like the Best

Omaha, June 21 —(AP) — Texas had that title-bound look again today as the NCAA baseball tournament moved into semi-final rounds.

The Longhorns are the defending champions and were a pre-tourney favorite to keep the title.
Right off the bat, though, But-tlers jarred the Texans with a 4-2 defeat. Since then the westerners have begun to look lik champions again.

Monday night, Texas ousted Tufts with Jim Ehler pitching a no-hitter. Last night, the Longhorns had not only the sparkling 3-hit pitching of Murray Wall but also some powerful slugging that brought them a 12-1 victory over Washington State.

Washington State, before last night, had been the only unbeaten team in the tourney.

Tonight, in a single game Wisconsin plays Rutgers. The winner of that contest is paired with Texas in one game tomorrow night.

There was more sharp pitching
in the first game last night as Wisconsin eliminated Alabama 3-1.
Thornton Kipper hurled a three-hitter for the Badgers.

All the scoring was done in the first inning.

stitution provides for the Republican form of government. Their program is rabble rule, then socialism and, finally dictatorship.

The real Republicans didn't have any responsibility for getting us into this fix. Those who tried to keep us out of the wars were called dirty traitors and when Wilson and Roosevelt finally got their damned wars, they and their heirs hollered for more and more power over the people, including the power to abrogate our sovereignty and commit our lives and possessions to recoup the damage they had done.

They are great hands at adorning vicious failures and purpose with attractive names. "progressive" is one of them. Sure they are progressive. A man rolling to hell in a hat is progressing on his way.
"Liberal" is another. They are "liberal" with our lives, the produce of our work, the sweat of our brows, and our minerals, oil and forests, all for the purpose of standing off the come-uppance for their horrible, incompetence and frivolity.

They were liberal a few weeks ago with $2,500 of our money to buy a gold medal for that bellow-ing old meat-head from Kentucky,
Vice President Alben Barkley.
Barkley said he didn't know why congress gave him this medal.
Neither does anyone else and he ought to be ashamed to take it.
Truman ought to be sent to prison for knocking down his $50,000 a year grant in the guise of an expense account free of taxes and without any accounting. Barkley won one election by absolute outright, proven fraud. His gang in Kentucky bought votes with our money to put him back in his miserable job, the only way the old bum could get by. This was one of those W. P. A. grafts. Tom Stokes, of the Scripps-Howard outfit, went down there and proved it and got a Pulitzer award for fine reporting. That was before the Pulitzer prize became a New Deal political trinket.

A few years later, Barkley showed a spark of manhood when he kicked faunteroy Roosevelt in the teeth for insulting him publicly before the nation. Roosevelt was showing off to his New York Communists. Barkley knew what a faker Roosevelt was and called him that to his face and stood up the job of majority leader in the senate. Roosevelt then turned kinky and wheeled dear Alben back to continue doing his dirty work. The final scene was a revolution exhibition at the Chicago convention when Barkley bawled and roared for an hour and a half of the phoniest forencies ever heard, putting Roosevelt into nomination again. To a man of dignity it would have been a humiliating performance but these Democrats can't do anything else but hold office for a living. It was that or desk-room upstairs for Barkley.

Now he uses airplanes bought with your money to make a spectacle of himself courting his gal in his dotage and hasn't the decency to realize that this medal hung on him by a bunch of chisel-ers represents money wrung from desperate people who faced poverty or prison to pay for it and chose poverty.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

New York, June 21 —(AP) — After each tremendous outburst of major league baseball scoring — and there have been some dillies lately — you can hear talk about a "rabbi" ball. . . . Some pitchers even have claimed they can see his ears. . . . But National league Prexy Ford Frick just snorts "ridiculous. I'd say poor pitching accounts for those scores." . . . He can safely say that because the biggest scoring spree has occurred in the American league. . . . "The specifications for the official baseball are somewhere around this office; I don't know where," says Ford. "They haven't been changed since about 1922. I suppose the manufacturers test their products regularly." . . . Frick's theory is that every change in the baseball rules in 20 years has favored the hitters and he agrees half-heartedly that the 1950 re-wording of the definition of the "strike zone" might be one of those changes. . . . "I told my umpires there was absolutely no change," he explains, "but there's always a twilight zone where the umpire has to decide whether it's a strike or a ball. I opposed the change from 'shoulders' to 'armpits' because I thought it might mean lowering that twilight zone." . . . P. S.: Wouldn't that be okay for twilight games?

Corn Off The Kobs
One bright day this spring,
Ted Maupin, Michigan State first baseman, skipped baseball practice to play a little golf. . . . Ted cooked up a nice little story for Coach John Kobs about the need for extra study and took off for the links. . . . All he did was make the first hole-in-one of the season and get his feet plastered all over the local papers and radio. . . .
Next day, Maupin was moping around, certain he'd be bounced from the squad, but Kobs wisely played deaf and blind. . . . Like Joe McCarthy, John finds it easy to get along with a .300 hitter.

Shorts And Shells
Since setting that record of 13.5
seconds for the high hurdles, Southern California's Dick Atlesley has averaged slightly over 13.9 for each race. . . . Al Cicotte, who pitches for Norfolk, Va., in the Piedmont league, is a nephew of Eddie Cicotte, the White Sox immortal. . . . Just when Texas rivals in the NCAA baseball tournament thought they had "em against the local Murray Wall, that is—Bib Falk's team came up with another hurler—Jim, that is. . . . Possible substitution by the football Yanks will be Bob Kennedy for Bob Kennedy. . . . One Bob, a four-year-veteran from Washington State, is a good offensive back; the other,
second-year man from North Carolina, was the L. A. Dons' top defensive back last season.

That's The Heat Of It
When Vern McGrew, a Rice Institute high jumper, made the Olympic team in 1948, he was outfitted with regulation jumping shoes with heel spikes. He flopped all over London and discarded them. . . . When the Southwest conference vs. Big Seven meet came along this spring, Vern dragged out those shoes "just for the heck of it" and leaped 6.4. Then he used them again to win the NCAA title at 6.7. Apparently those confusing appendages had him at sixes and sevens.

Little Change in Cotton States Loop

By The Associated Press
Pine Bluff and Hot Springs maintained their joint leadership in the Cotton States league when both won last night.

The Judges beat Clarkdale, 11-8; the Bathers took Greenwood, 7-5.

Greenville defeated third-place
Monroe, 5-3.

The fourth scheduled game, El Dorado against Natchez, was rained out. It'll be played off tonight as part of a doubleheader.

Home runs by Ben Cantrell and Harry Chosen provided the Pine Bluff side margin of victory over the Planters. The score was tied 8-8 in the eighth until Chosen homered with nobody on. In the ninth Cantrell got a two-run homor. It was his second circuit blow of the ninth.

Relief Pitcher Joe David, making his first appearance in a Pine Bluff uniform, was credited with the win. He joined the club only yesterday to replace veteran southpaw Bobby Graham, who's been released.

The Hot Springs-Greenville game wasn't decided until the eleventh inning, when John Thiel's double drove in two runs to give the Bathers the victory. A reliever also was credited with the win in this game. He is Raymond Baer, and it was his second straight in a relief job.

Uncared runs in the fifth and sixth innings gave Greenville its margin over Monroe. The result evened the series at one game each. Lawson was the winning pitcher.

The teams meet again tonight at the same stands.
El brings at Greenwood.
Pine Bluff at Clarkdale.
El Dorado at Natchez.
Greenville at Monroe.

Jimmy Stout, veteran jockey,
has had seven mounts in the Widener at Hialeah, and the best he has been able to finish is third.

DiMaggio and Musial Reach Their Goals

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Joe DiMaggio owns 2,000 big league hits today and Stan Musial has 1,500.

Each slugger attained his immediate goal last night but Di-Mag's was by far the more satisfying.

Joe collected two hits to drive in three runs and lead the New York Yankees to an important 8-2 triumph over the Cleveland Indians. The victory, coupled with Washington's 4-2 victory over Detroit boosted the runner-up Yankees to within one game of the American league leading Tigers.

Stan slammed one hit—a home run—but it didn't prevent the New York Giants from gaining their first victory of the season over his St. Louis Cardinals, 3-2. The defeat knocked the Cards out of a first place tie with Brooklyn. The Dodgers thrashed the Cincinnati
Reds, 8-2, to take a game lead over the Redbirds.

Boston's Red Sox and Philadelphia's Phillies, third in their respective leagues, gained some ground. The Red Sox triumphed over the Chicago White Sox, 5-3, while the Phils toppled the Pittsburgh Pirates, 7-3.

The St. Louis Browns, behind
Ned Garver, shut out Lou Brissie and the Philadelphia Athletics, 1-0.
The Chicago Cubs won a 10-inning struggle from Boston's Braves, 4-3.

Crime Inquiry May Move to Midwest

Washington, June 21.—(P)—The senate crime investigating committee is preparing to bear down on big-time gambling and crime in Chicago and the Midwest.

A committee source told reporters the senate inquiry will shift to the Chicago area early next month—with both public and secret hearings in Chicago and Washington.

Virgil Petersen, director of the Chicago crime commission, is tentatively booked as the first witness. Petersen has made a long-time study of national crime and much of the information he has assembled is in the hands of the committee.

Chicago has been named by federal officials as a center of narcotics and counterfeiting rings and gambling operations.

Before the hearings are ended, the investigation may spread out into Indiana and the surrounding territory.

Paul Cyr, Republican candidate, for representative in the first Indiana district, has turned over to the committee information which he says exposed crime conditions in Lake county, Indiana.

Cyr has said he intends to use the material in his campaign for office.

Chicago's racketeers, however, are expected to be the main target of the senate investigators.

Secret Service Chief U. E. Baughman has reported to congress that counterfeiting is at a 10-year-high—and Chicago is one of the operating centers of a gang turning out bogus money at the rate of $100,000 a month.

H. J. Anslinger, chief of the U. S. Narcotics bureau, has pointed to Chicago as one of the biggest centers in the illicit narcotics traffic. And he has given senate investigators the names of 800 persons who he says are involved in a crime and narcotics ring.

Chicago also is the operating headquarters for the Continental press service which a senate commerce committee report has named as the chief source of race news used by the nation's bookies.

Tomorrow the committee will receive testimony from federal communications Commission Chairman Wayne Coy on the use of telephones and telegraph in criminal activities.

The committee, headed by Senator Kefauver (D-Tenn.), is studying the need for new legislation designed to cripple big-time gambling and crime operations which spread over state lines.

Contempt Power Is Assumed

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, June 21.—(P)—Every answer questions, is cited for congressional committee, refuses to answer questions, is cited for contempt, and lands in jail, an ancient question arises.

What right has congress to force anyone to answer questions, if he doesn't want to? Where does congress get the power to do that?

There's nothing in the constitution which directly gives it such power at all. But from the earliest days congress assumed it had the power.

It assumed such power this way. Congress represents the interests of the people. And, when it is making an investigation, to obtain facts upon which to pass a law, it does so for the benefit of the people.

Therefore, it must be able to get information which it considers necessary.

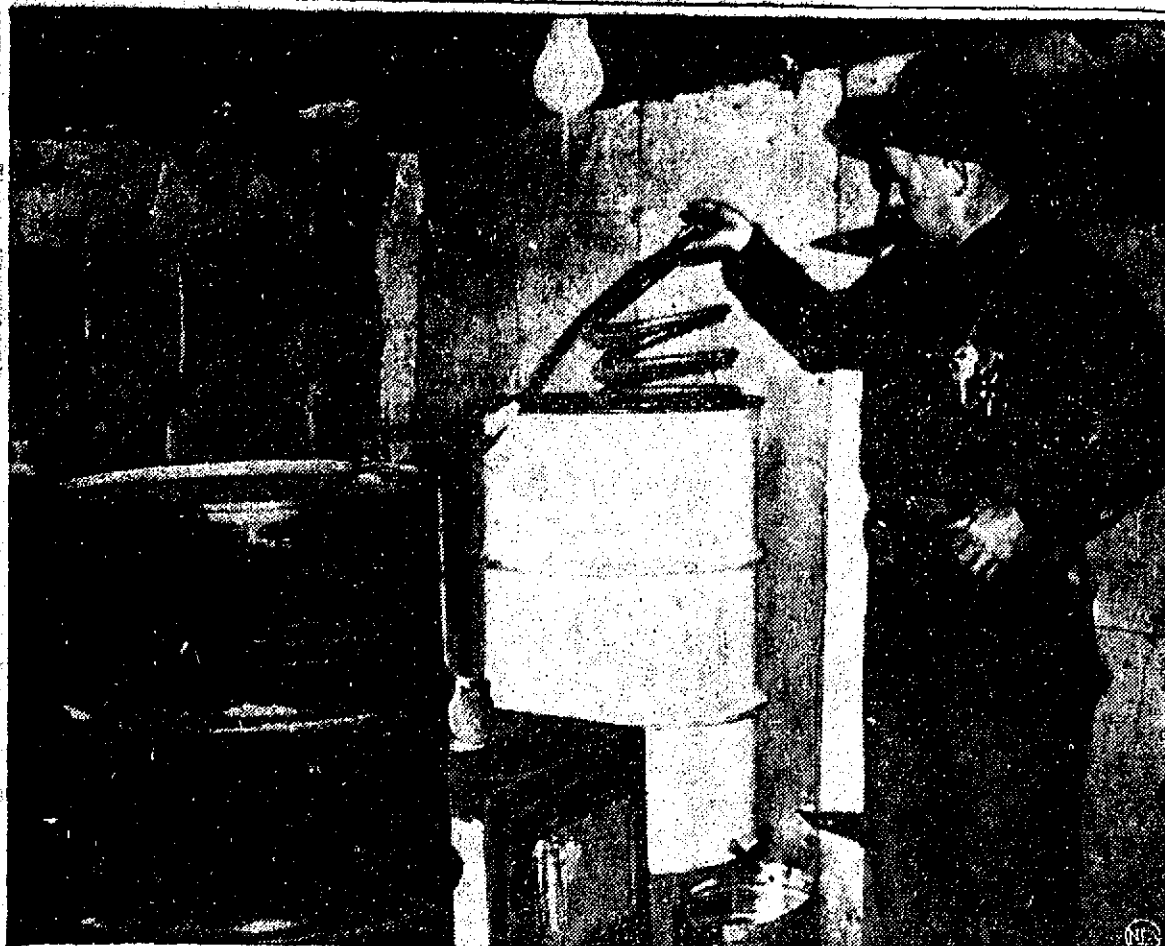

Congress assumed two things: (1) That it has the right to demand an answer to its questions; (2) that it has the right to punish anyone who refuses.

And there's no longer any doubt about congress' right to do both because the Supreme court has ruled that congress does have both rights.

Many times during its history, when witnesses refused to answer or refused to produce papers which a congressional committee wanted, congress has cited people for contempt.

If it happened before a house committee, he was brought before the full house, tried, and when found guilty, jailed. If it happened before a senate committee, the full senate tried him.

Usually, though, the jail term was for no more than the session of congress. For example, if a man was jailed for contempt and STILL STILLED—A raid by federal "revenuers" on a house 20 miles back in the mountains from Charleston, W. Va., resulted in the capture of this 50-gallons-a-day still, being examined by State Trooper W. S. Webb. Along with the still, officers seized 30 gallons of "white mule" and 50 gallons of mash.

SHRINER SHINER—Hollywood actress Laura Elliott shows off the fetching costume she'll wear in the million dollar motion picture electrical pageant in Los Angeles, June 22. The film industry is presenting the extravaganza to entertain Shriners during their convention.

45 days later the congress went home, the man was released.

But in 1857 congress passed a law under which such a person could be jailed for a term longer than a congressional session. That law still stands. So—

If you are cited for contempt for refusing to answer a committee's question, you can be fined as much as $1,000 and jailed for one year. That's the maximum sentence allowed the 1857 law.

The last time a house of congress tried a man for contempt itself was in 1934. Now the usual procedure is this:

You refuse to answer a question. The house or senate, depending on whose committee you refused to answer, cites you for contempt.

Then you go to trial in a federal court, and, if found guilty, are fined or jailed, or given both penalties. But — and this is a point not often remembered:

Both houses still have the right to skip the trial in a federal court and try and sentence you yourselves. Congress could do that today. It has never given up the right to do so.

There is only one allowable excuse for a person to refuse to answer a congressional committee's

McMath Is in No Hurry to Campaign

Little Rock, June 21.—(P)—Governor McMath apparently is in no hurry about devoting himself entirely to campaigning for a second term.

Although he'll make his formal opening campaign speech at Pine Bluff Saturday night. He's outlined for the week following, a schedule of appearances. He's labeled only one of them as "political."

Of course, if he picks a few votes by crowning beauty queens and dedicating swimming pools, he certainly won't object.

By end of next week, McMath's chief opponent, former Gov. Ben Laney, will have behind him two weeks of the intensive fine-weeks stumping tour of Arkansas he's promised before the first Democratic primary, July 25.

McMath hasn't indicated when—or even if—he plans to plunge into the campaign on a similar basis.

Laney charged at Warren last night that pressure was being put on state employees to have them attend the McMath opening at Pine Bluff.

He declared also that McMath aides were holding promises of road construction for votes and that employees were being told they better "vote right" to hold their jobs.

Laney promised that if he becomes governor again, he'll see that the "eight tax laws" passed by the 1949 legislature are repealed.

Prolonged applause greeted his pledge to repeal a 1948 law which prohibits counting federal income tax payments as deductions in payment of state income payments could be deducted from state income tax returns. Prior to his administration there were no restrictions.

McMath's non-political or only partly-political appearances next week include a speech at formal opening of the independence savings bond drive on Monday; a speech to the Arkansas valley cooperative at Ozark Tuesday; at the Miss Arkansas contest on Wednesday and the Thursday night finals, interspersed by a flying trip to McGhee to dedicate a swimming pool, and at a rodeo at Springdale on Saturday.

He'll speak at Batesville at 8 p. m. Friday in an admittedly-political rally.

Buses Again Rolling in Los Angeles

By The Associated Press

Street cars clanged and bus horns honked again today in Los Angeles as striking workers returned to the throttle after a five day strike.

The big West coast city's million commuters and 200,000 visiting Shriners had fallen back on car pools and hired busses during the lack of public transportation.

But a baker's strike in five West coast cities continued, and no settlement had been announced in a Pittsburgh milk drivers strike.

New talks were foreseen as possible in the CIO American newspaper gild strike against the big New York Evening Daily, the World Telegram and Sun.

The AFL transit workers in Los Angeles got a five cent an hour pay raise immediately in their strike settlement. An additional three cents an hour will be granted after a year.

The bakery strike hit Los Angeles, Portland, Seattle, Bremerton, and Everett. The bakeries affected in the five cities produce about 90 percent of the bread in the areas they serve.

The Pittsburgh milk drivers were still working on a proposal to present the operators which might end their wage-and-hours dispute.

The nine day strike by editorial workers of the World Telegram and Sun continued after two parleys yesterday. A union spokesman said another meeting might be held today. The dispute centers largely about wages and a contract job security clause.

The new CIO International Union of Electrical Workers will take up talks again with the General Electric Co. in New York next Tuesday. The union recently won the right to bargain for 54,000 GE workers in 49 plants. In its first contract it seeks an unspecified wage increase as well as welfare and other gains for its members.

GE officers were to meet today with the IUE's rival union, the (Independent) United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America. This union formerly represented nearly all GE workers, but now bargains for 37,000 in 40 plants. The Independent was ousted from the CIO on grounds of Communist sympathies.

Coal and iron ore shipments at Toledo, O., resumed yesterday when 165 AFL longshoremen voted to walk past picket lines and return to work at Chesapeake and Ohio docks. At Toledo, Lorain, Fairport, and Huron, however, other fellow unionists continued their strike.

The C & O men stayed away from their jobs because of a picket line set up by employees of the Lakefront dock company since last Friday in a wage and bargaining procedure dispute.

No Question About It—Those Baptists Like Their Chicken

Little Rock, June 20.—(P)—Rural Arkansas Baptist ministers were told today that country people won't go to hear a preacher "who doesn't know the difference between a Rhode Island red hen and a Plymouth Rock rooster."

(Rhode Island reds and Plymouth Rocks are two breeds of chickens.)

The opinion was expressed by S. F. Dowis, Atlanta, Ga., secretary of the Baptist home mission board, in an address at the rural church conference of Arkansas Baptist preachers at Camp Robinson near here.

"You can get by with any kind of preaching most anywhere except in the country," he added. "There you've got to preach and know the gospel, because country people know more honest-to-goodness gospel than anyone else in the world."

Bell Long Lines Department Agrees on Wages

New York, June 20.—(P)—A wage agreement was signed today by the long lines department of the American Telephone Co., and Division 10, CIO Communications of Workers of America, a company spokesman announced. If ratified, it will affect 20,000 members in 40 states.

The spokesman said the agreement provides no general wage increase. However, he said it does provide a shortening of the wage progression schedule.

The long lines negotiations have been one of the key wage disputes in the nationwide telephone labor situation. A telephone strike had been threatened but it was postponed indefinitely last April 25.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture has developed a way to stabilize guncotton in about a third the formerly required time.

Gambler's Plea May Reduce Sentence

New York, June 20.—(P)—Bookmaker Frank Erickson's guilty plea to gambling charges is expected to reduce his penalty when he is sentenced next Monday.

Court attaches said unofficially today they thought the 54-year-old boss of a nationwide bookmaking business might be sent to prison for from one to five years.

The maximum punishment for the 59 bookmaking counts and one conspiracy count which he pleaded guilty is a total of 60 years in prison, and $30,000 in fines.

District Attorney Bank Hogan said he would ask the stiffest sentence possible, but that Erickson's action in throwing himself on the court's mercy normally could be expected to lessen the punishment.

By his plea, Erickson also preserved the anonymity of the heavy-betting customers of his $12,500, 000-a-year gambling empire.

Some of the names, said to include wealthy New York industrialists, were scheduled as witnesses in the trial, which was halted at the start yesterday by the gambler's plea.

Meanwhile, New Jersey author-

McCloy Admits 'Demolition' Plans

Frankfurt, Germany, June 20.—(UP)—U. S. High Commission John J. McCloy said today the West has "certain demolition plans in connection with the defense of Germany against aggression from the East."

McCloy did not elaborate. His remark came in a statement denying Communist charges that the Allies planned to blow up the legendary Lorelei rock in the Rhine river to block a Russian advance.

McCloy said the "affair Lorelei" was in the same category as the "affair potato bug," referring to a recent Communist charge that American planes dropped potato bugs on eastern German crops.

"No doubt there are certain demolition plans in connection with the defense of Germany against aggression from the East," McCloy said.

But Communist propaganda regarding the flooding of great areas and the damming of the Rhine is "sheer nonsense," he added.

Hogan has pledged cooperation in supplying evidence in his possession to other law-enforcement agencies interested in the case, and to the senate subcommittee probing nationwide gambling.
